

2013 Annual Report

Seeking to preserve, protect and enhance land in perpetuity for the public benefit.

Chairman's Report

Dear Friends of the Licking Land Trust,

As the Trust enters its 25th year, I am happy to report that the organization is vibrant and growing. By many measures, 2013 was a good year for land conservation in Licking County. In fact it was a good year for the land trust movement in general—today, some 1,700 land trusts protect over 47 million acres of land in the United States, and similar land protection efforts are springing up in other nations. These results are truly awe-inspiring, especially when you consider that much of that land remains in private ownership, protected by people who see the benefits of conservation and who want to share the land they love with future generations. My fellow Board members and I are honored to be part of such a movement.

This 2013 Annual Report provides details on the state of the Licking Land Trust: our membership, protected land, stewardship, education and outreach, finances and future directions. Some highlights from the year include:

- 60 more acres protected, thanks to Tom, Louise, and Suzette Beckett who placed a conservation easement on their beautiful farm in Bowling Green Township
- An all-time high in membership, with 475 individual members and 10 business members
- A commitment to apply for National Accreditation in 2014, acquisition of a $5,000 grant from the Land Trust Alliance and a $1,250 grant from the Pay it Forward Initiative, both to be used toward our accreditation effort
- A sound and carefully scrutinized financial ledger, as we continue our work to grow and manage the assets of the Trust
- Well-attended and highly enjoyable events at Spring Valley, at the Brush Farm, and at Bryn Du Mansion for our annual banquet
- The addition of two new board members, Jim Bidigare and Tom Henshaw, with thanks to Larry Bicking, Pat Deering, and Greg Sharkey whose terms ended in 2013

The upcoming year is an exciting and important one for us, as we seek to join the ranks of land trusts accredited by the Land Trust Alliance. I am pleased that we can approach this from a position of strength and confidence, thanks largely to our dedicated members, our committed Board, and our tireless office administrator, Wendy Bittel.

We continue to believe deeply in our mission: to preserve, protect and enhance land in perpetuity for the public benefit, and we thank you for your continued support. Our collective efforts to this end are being matched by thousands of similar communities around the world.

Together, we are making the world a greener place—one farm, one forest, one wetland at a time.

Highlights

Volunteers and Community Activity

A special thanks is due to all the Licking Land Trust volunteers, including Board members, who contributed thousands of hours to Trust activities in 2013. Volunteers helped inspect and document protected properties, meet with community groups and government officials, work on the Board and its committees, meet with prospective donors and members, prepare newsletters and annual reports, man booths and sell raffle tickets.

Future conservationists assisting with the Licking Land Trust's rainwater experiment at the Dawes Arboretum Arbor Day Festival

Volunteers helped staff a booth at the Dawes Arboretum Arbor Day Festival demonstrating rainwater flow and absorption on various surfaces. Kids and adults alike enjoyed using squirt bottles to make it rain on the simulated forest, farm and parking lot and observe the related run-off.

The Trust once again participated as a named sponsor of the Licking County River Round Up event organized by Licking County Soil & Water Conservation District to clean up trash in the Licking River and tributaries in the fall.

Stewardship

2013 was an exciting year of stewardship activity for the Licking Land Trust. Board members and volunteers visited all 27 Licking Land Trust easements and properties, and as mentioned in the Chairman's Report, we added 60 new acres to our protected properties. In the fall, Board members visited our Park Trails properties. The primary focus of this visit was to complete GPS mapping of property boundaries in the area; however, we also met with concerned landowners adjacent to those properties to discuss issues related to recreational use and active management of this vital green space.

Stewardship is critical to ensuring that all easements are upheld and that properties are monitored on a regular basis. The Licking Land Trust takes great pride in maintaining positive working relationships with property owners and the greater Licking County community. Through positive outreach and timely communication land use issues are generally resolved long before they reach a point requiring formal Licking Land Trust action.

As part of the stewardship process, we developed an improved annual monitoring reporting form that includes maps and photos for each property inspection. These additions will allow us to better track changes to our properties over time, identify potential areas of concern, and document – through images – some of the beautiful protected areas we oversee.

In addition to property inspections, the Trust continued its restoration work at Spring Valley Nature Preserve by helping to fund the addition of stairs along a steep section of trail on the northeast section of the preserve near the platform tennis courts.

Education and Outreach

The education and outreach mission of the Licking Land Trust successfully advanced again in 2013. Two hikes featuring protected properties allowed members to soak in the natural beauty of Licking County. The spring's annual wildflower hike at Spring Valley Nature Preserve featured some friendly competition in plant identification amongst the 30 Trust members in attendance. In the fall, a dozen Trust members and volunteers learned about regional history while touring the Brush Farm in Pataskala.

Bringing the year to a successful close the November annual meeting featured keynote speaker Adam Weinberg a renowned environmental sociologist and the newly hired President of Denison University. In addition, at the annual meeting a winner was drawn for the Trust's first fundraising raffle. The winner took home a beautiful painting by local landscape artist James Young. While primarily a fundraiser, the raffle provided a venue to discuss the mission of the Trust with a growing interested population. With over 750 tickets sold, the event was quite a success.

In addition to the Trust's own activities members were active in promoting the Trust's mission through several outreach venues including the Dawes Arboretum Arbor Day Festival and the Hartford Fair. Additionally two members presented their experiences with land preservation at the semi-annual Coalition of Land Trusts (COLT) conference in Columbus.

The Trust continued to widely distribute its self-published annual report and spring and fall newsletters. Copies of each were distributed to every member, Licking County public officials, and made available at local public libraries. As a new feature this year's newsletter included a calendar of relevant regional activities, demonstrating the Trust's dedication to connecting the community to the natural environment it works to protect.

The Trust's online presence continues to draw more and more visitors annually seeing the monthly website traffic average 196 visitors per month, a 28% increase over 2012. This trend shows steady increases since the inception of the website in 2009 and may be a focus of future Trust outreach activity. The Trust also maintains an active Facebook page that keeps the community informed of the most current events and issues on land preservation.

In total the outreach and education activities of the Trust have reached thousands of individuals, both informing those already interested in the mission about the nuances of preservation and growing the ranks of individuals taking a new interest in the land preservation movement.

Accreditation

In 2013, the Licking Land Trust submitted an application for the Land Trust Alliance Accreditation Lottery and was selected as a candidate for accreditation in 2014 by the independent Land Trust Alliance Accreditation Commission. In preparation for the accreditation process, which will take place in 2014, the Trust's Accreditation Committee worked throughout 2013 to update our land trust policies and documentation. Consultants from the Tecumseh Land Trust (TLT) aided the Committee in this effort, such assistance made possible by a $5,000 grant from the LTA Midwest. Meetings with TLT enabled the Accreditation Committee to identify processes for improvement; to review records, procedures, and current operations; and to make recommendations for enhancements.

Recently, the Licking Land Trust received a second grant from the LTA Midwest for additional supporting funds to assist in the accreditation application process. Both of these grants required either matching funds or in-kind match, which in our case required tracking volunteer hours spent by members of the Board. The Trust is grateful for these grants as well as for other support from donors, because the process of accreditation is a considerable investment not only in volunteer hours but also in the application fees and document preparation required for undergoing the review.

As of mid-2013, the process of accreditation had already begun, and it will continue with the submission of the pre-application documentation this coming July. The final application will be submitted in October of 2014. While the process of preparation for accreditation has been lengthy, it has served as an invaluable experience, which has strengthened the organization and ensures the future of the Licking Land Trust and the services it provides to the community and surrounding region.

Membership & Donor Development

In 2013, the Licking Land Trust once again broke previous records and achieved its highest membership enrollment, with a total membership of 475. The membership comprised 59 individuals, 322 family members, 34 honorary members, 10 businesses and organizations, and a small number of students and governmental units.

The Committee continued its work on developing the Trust's Legal Defense Fund, a fund that must be fully constituted when the Trust applies for accreditation in the summer of 2014. The Trust must also continue to build its Stewardship Fund, also required over a longer term for national accreditation. In the interest of supporting these funds, the Committee spearheaded a fundraising raffle that raised a gross total of $6,050. Local artist James Young, a business member of the Licking Land Trust, created and donated an oil-on canvas original farmscape, titled "Looking Ahead." A total of 777 tickets were sold to Licking Land Trust supporters in 14 states, the District of Columbia, and Bermuda.

The Committee also submitted a major grant proposal, seeking assistance with building the Legal Defense Fund, to an organization that has supported the Licking Land Trust in the past. The result of this initiative is expected to be determined in the spring of 2014.

An Investment and Spending Policy Statement for the Trust drafted by the Committee is under review by the full Board, with a target of completion and adoption in early 2014. Additionally, the Committee developed and issued a Request for Proposals to various financial institutions, to begin the process of selecting an investment manager for various Trust funds.

Interviews with financial institutions are slated to take place early in 2014.

Other ongoing work for the Committee includes the development of a continuing fund-raising plan that will be used over the next five years to build the Stewardship Fund; the effort to solicit new memberships from a variety of areas, especially landowners whose property is contiguous with Raccoon Creek; and long-term discussions of modifying our membership model, and a new data base.

Financial Report

The financial condition of the Licking Land Trust remained strong during 2013 with total cash and total assets increasing during the year. The Trust continues to have no debt. Currently all cash is invested only in FDIC insured bank accounts with a local bank.

As of December 31, 2013, total assets were $452,860 of which $204,640 was in cash in various bank accounts and the balance of the assets of $248,220 is the value of the land owned, easements and other miscellaneous assets, as shown on the balance sheet.

During 2013 total cash received by the Trust was $40,105. Operating cash received, primarily dues, was $23,055. Operating expenses for 2013 were $28,517, thus operating expenses exceeded operating cash received during 2013. However during 2013 the Trust raised $6,050 from a raffle of a painting donated by Jay Young and also received unrestricted donations of $1,000 and grants of $10,000. The grants are restricted for preparation and other activities related to our application for accreditation with the national Land Trust Alliance.

The total cash of $204,640 that the Trust had on hand as of December 31, 2013 is in the following accounts: $25,462 of operating cash on hand, $107,101 in donations and bequests, $56,644 in dedicated funds for stewardship and potential legal defense, $15,074 in the Spring Valley fund, for projects at that preserve and a small tree planting fund of $359.

The Trust's Board regularly reviews and approves the financial statements and transactions, including donations, bequests, grants and operating funds and all expenses at each Board meeting and compares them to the annual budget.
